Will Huawei build a mobile tower in the Solomon Islands?

The Solomon Islands has secured a $66 million loan from China to build 161 mobile towers built and supplied by Huawei. Under the terms of the deal, the island nation will receive a 20-year concessional loan from the state-linked Exim Bank of China.

What is Huawei's deal with the Solomon Islands?

The Solomon Islands government celebrated the deal with Huawei as a historical financial partnership between the two countries to implement a project. The loan for this project will come from the Exim Bank of China, which offers a 1% interest rate.

How many cell towers will the Solomon Islands build?

The Solomon Islands has outlined its intentions to deploy more than 100 cell towers with the help of a loan amounting to $100 million from a Chinese state-owned bank. There's plans for the deployment of 161 towers that will see the Oceanic country's capital Honiara take out a loan, while Huawei will build these towers.

Will Australia build a telecom tower in the Solomon Islands?

Australia, which had agreed to build six telecom towers in the country, has also expressed concern. In 2018, the Solomon Islands awarded a contract to Huawei to build an underwater telecom cable network. The Australian government intervened to jointly fund the cable.

Is Huawei a pariah in the Solomon Islands?

In 2018, the Solomon Islands awarded a contract to Huawei to build an underwater telecom cable network. The Australian government intervened to jointly fund the cable. Since then, the Solomon Islands has switched diplomatic allegiance from Taiwan to China. Huawei, meanwhile, has become somewhat of an international pariah due to security concerns.

Will China build mobile towers in the Solomons?

This deal follows a security deal Beijing struck with the Oceanian nation earlier this year to protect Chinese investments in the country. But China isn't the only country that has been building mobile towers in the Solomons, with Australia building six towers across the country.
